MCKENZIE BILL NOW IN HANDS OF THE SENATE GREAT FORD CELEBRATION PLANNED

RECOGNITION HERE OF SOLONS' ACTION WILL BE SUITABLE

Individuals and Civic Leaders Plan for Meeting Here

RECORD CROWD IS EXPECTED

Largest Auditorium in City to Be Secured For the Rally

Coming closely upon the heels of an announcement that the house had passed the McKenzie bill and that on the senate would take up that measure or a similar one, arrangements were begun by individuals and officials of local civic organizations to stage a big celebration in recognition of the favorable action taken by the house of representatives.

Owing to the general hurry and about other things such as the differential presidential primary it will be several days before full arrangements are made for the celebration.

It is expected that a number of prominent out of town speakers will be secured for the occasion. The largest auditorium possible will be secured as a record breaking crowd is expected at the celebration.

Such speakers will be sought as thoroughly familiar and conversant with the facts connected with the difficult tasks performed by the proponents of the Ford bid in the past, also such speakers will be called who have some idea of the further steps to be performed, if the Ford bid is to continue to have smooth sailing it goes to the senate and to the president of the United States.

It is expected that such speakers will address those who attend the celebration, who can give the history of efforts to develop Muscle Shoals over a hundred years. There will be speakers also who are familiar with the fight for the Ford offer since the Col. J. W. Worthington first secured the consent of Henry Ford to the Shoals.

Former Editor Is Denied a Pardon

WASHINGTON, March 11—An application of pardon for Edward J. Kelly, former editor of The New York Mail, convicted of violation of espionage act, has been refused President Coolidge. Consideration will be given by the President, however, to an appeal for commutation of Kelly's sentence.

Special Counsel Guides Coolidge on Doherty Offer

WASHINGTON, March 11—President Coolidge will be guided by the advice of the special counsel in acting on the offer made yesterday by Edward L. Doherty to continue construction work on the storage tanks at Pearl Harbor, at his own expense.

As both the government attorneys are expected to file legal proceedings to annul the Teapot and California cases no immediate action on the offer is expected.

Finds Her "Dead" Baby in Blackmail Plot.

After the World War, when she was a nurse with the British Army in Flanders, Miss Mazie Dring came to America to marry an American she had met in France. He deserted her when he learned she was to become a mother, and she gave her baby to a Chicago woman, who later told her it was dead. Recently attorneys for Joseph Baum, wealthy Kansas City, Mo., packer, informed her the baby was alive and was being used to attempt to blackmail Baum. Miss Dring has her baby back and the police are seeking the other woman.

MAJOR CLEARS UP MCLEAN TELEGRAMS

(Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, March 11—Under pressure of a hard hitting cross examination, John F. Major, confidential man to Edward B. McLean explained to the oil committee today some more of the mysteries of the McLean telegrams.

One of these referred to without name in the messages he said, was Bascom Slemph, with whom he declared he had returned from Florida and upon whom he had called several times at Mr. Slemph's invitation. He insisted the calls were purely social.

The code word "eyde," the witness explained, referred to W. E. Rochester, attached to the office of Attorney General Daugherty.

He said Rochester, on one occasion, had asked him to come to the department and had indicated that something might be expected soon, but he was hazy as to details.

The mysterious Willis, referred to in the telegram as looking after McLean's interests, was identified finally by Major as Wilton J. Lambert, the publisher's attorney.

"Absolutely none," Major said when asked if there was any hesitancy on the part of McLean in coming to Washington to testify.

"McLean has been eager to appear before the committee," Major said, and "sent 20 telegrams to his various agents, telling them he was coming irrespective of their advice."

After an hour and a half of examining telegrams from Three Rivers to Mexico, the oil committee resumed its public hearings today by recalling John F. Major, one of E. B. McLean's agents.

Major said McLean had not told him about conference with the Washington publisher had with Albert B. Fall, in Atlantic City, in mid-December, before Fall wrote the committee that he got $100,000 from McLean.

The witness testified last Saturday that it was at this conference that McLean and Fall discussed the testimony Fall was to give before the oil committee.

SPECIAL MESSAGE SENT TO CONGRESS URGING TAX SLASH

Pres. Coolidge Asks for Reduction Before March 15th

IMPORTANCE OF CUT POINTED OUT

Would Have Legislation Set Aside in Favor of Tax Relief

(Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, March 11—President Coolidge today sent a special message to congress recommending a reduction of 25 per cent on income taxes for 1923 be authorized before March 15. The president believed that the importance of the reduction would justify the laying aside of all other legislative business for its consideration.

The text of the message is as follows:

"It has been my earnest hope that a 25 per cent reduction in taxes to be paid for the current year might be provided by law before the 15th of March comes. Many people have been expecting that such would be the case and deferred their tax returns accordingly. It is a matter of imminent importance and I do not hesitate in recommending that the public welfare would be much advanced by temporarily laying aside all other legislation and enacting a resolution for this purpose, which ought to be by unanimous consent.

Benefit Pointed Out
"The tax-payers, the business interests, agriculture, industry, finance, in fact, all the elements that go to make up the economic welfare of the people of America would be greatly benefitted by such action.

"It would remove an element of uncertainty from the current financial year at once, which would be a strong stimulant to business, with the result that the wage earner and agriculturist of our country would be greatly benefitted.

"It is impossible to see that any harm could occur from this reduction and there is every prospect of resulting benefits, which would be very great. It would be a positive step in the right direction which is more needed at this time to justify the confidence of the people that the government is intent solely on the promotion of the public welfare, without regard to any collateral objects."

ICY BLAST GRIPS THE SOUTH TODAY

(Associated Press)

ATLANTA, March 11—An icy blast from the west today held the South in a tight grip, with temperatures reported below freezing in many sections. Extreme cold weather bureaus say the freezing mark was registered in Georgia as far south as the Florida line.

High winds and low temperatures are reported in Louisiana and Alabama. Snow fell in Alabama last night and heavy frosts were reported as far south as the Gulf.

Locally the thermometer at 7:00 o'clock this morning recorded 24 degrees. Government reports from Georgia's peace belt, published early today, stated the cold wave, while it may slightly retard, will not appreciably effect the crop.

CAPITALISTS LOOK OVER THE VALLEY; SAY FUTURE SURE

Colonel Mays Here for Day, Accompanied by M. P. Collins

LODGE SAID TO FAVOR THE BID

Republican Leader Is Reported Willing to Help Offer

Two prominent New York capitalists, Colonel L. A. Mays, president of the Muscle Shoals to the Gulf of Mexico railroad, and Minburn Post Collins, a prominent business man of New York city, were here today looking over this section and other territory in the Tennessee Valley.

The gentlemen left for the Tri-Cities where they will continue their investigations. Both men have just returned from Palm Beach, Florida, where they spent part of the winter.

Mr. Collins, who is a large owner of real estate in all parts of the country, stated he spent a month in Augusta, Ga., before going to Florida, and that prior to his Southern tour, he visited Toronto, Canada, and many of the larger cities in western Canada, coming thence through the northwestern states, to the South.

"I was never in the South before said Mr. Collins, "and I am very much impressed with the section, especially the Tennessee Valley."

Colonel Mays stated apart from the New York business man that Mr. Collins was not only prominent in financial circles, but that he was one of the leading republicans of New York state adding that Collins was in touch with the "Muscle Shoals for Ford" movement, was for it and was a firm believer in the senate's coming action being favorable to the Ford bid.

Lodge Said To Be Favorable
Both gentlemen explained that at Palm Beach, they had met and talked with a number of United States Senators. It was stated that the impression was general among the senators at Palm Beach, that in the event the house passed the McKenzie bill awarding the Shoals to Ford, that the senate would interpose no strong objection to its passage through that body.

The strength of Senator Underwood in the senate was referred to and in that connection it was declared that Senator Henry Cabot Lodge was reported to have said that instead of the (Lodge) opposing the Ford offer, that the Massachusetts Senator would "help put it over."

Colonel Mays stated that of course Senator Norris would oppose the Ford bid, that he (Col. Mays) was, with Norris at Muscle Shoals some time ago, and that the Nebraska Senator was against the Ford bid and very bitterly opposed to it at that time. Asked what power the super-power plan of Norris would have to get votes in the congress, as against the Ford bid, Colonel Mays declared that private business would oppose the government's going in for the super-power idea, as such a move would be bringing the government in competition with individuals. Both Colonel Mays and Mr. Collins expressed themselves as for the Ford bid, and said they believed it would pass the Senate.

"Hundreds of acres will" be required to accommodate some of the single industries that are coming to this Valley when Ford gets the Shoals," declared Colonel Mays.

Congratulations Are Sent Forward

Officials of the Albany-Decatur chamber of commerce have sent congratulatory telegrams to the following members of congress who were active in the fight which resulted in the passage of the McKenzie bill: Judge E. B. Almon, Mr. McKenzie, Mr. Madden and Mr. James.

AN OVERWHELMING MAJORITY GIVEN TO THE FORD BID HERE

Citizens Sign Petitions Freely in Local Drug Stores

CHAMBER TAKES TOLL OF PEOPLE

Only Six Votes Cast Against Offer of Detroit Man

"Nine hundred and ten to six, with the six voted by local employees of the Alabama Power company," was the report of chamber of commerce officials on the poll taken here beginning Saturday and closing Monday night, to register a choice locally as between the Ford bid for Muscle Shoals and the proposition of the power companies and government operation of the same property.

The record was taken by the chamber having ballot-petitions placed at the drug stores, beginning with Dillehay Brothers in South Albany and ending with the drug stores on Bank street.

Two columns for names were provided on large petition paper. Above the first column appeared the words, "I favor the Ford proposition." In the second column were the words, "I favor the proposition of the Alabama Power company or government ownership."

On the record several hours after the panes were placed at the drug stores 601 names were found to be for the Ford proposition with one or two votes, the record showed, by well known employees of the power company in the second column.

On three unofficial ballots placed at the Lyons, Hilda and Echols hotels Saturday night the names of a number of traveling men were placed who were all for the Ford bid and also local citizens to the number of 85, one of these votes being cast, it was stated by an employee of the power company, in the second column.

All but those hotel ballots remained at the drug stores until Monday night when the count as announced was given out by officials of the chamber of commerce.

There was little effort to bring out a big vote for the Ford offer by its many supporters in the Twin Cities aside from having the ballots prepared and placed at public places.

There were three sheets of the record paper on most of the ballots sent to the drug stores, and early in the evening Saturday it was found necessary to provide additional signing space in the first column, "the one reserved for the supporters of the Ford bid."

Drug store owners stated that all who were in the habit of frequenting their stores signed the ballots freely and that some of their well known customers called up from time to time and requested that their names be placed on the ballot in the pro-Ford column.

DE FACTO PRESIDENT OF HONDURAS DEAD

(Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, March 11—The death of Lopez Gutierrez, de facto president of Honduras, was reported to the state department today in a telegram from Tegucigalpa.

The message said that Gutierrez died at 10:30 a. m., yesterday but did not give the cause of his death. A 72 hour armistice had been arranged among the factions in the three cornered revolution.

President Gutierrez left the capital some days ago when a revolutionary attack appeared imminent. He went to Amapallo for refuge, but today's message did not indicate where his death occurred.

A message from Consul at Zeiba said that town was occupied March 9 by 9,000 revolutionists, but that 700 government troops are occupying the fort there.

Off and on desultory shooting and fighting has occurred at times severe.

Major Studdant, of the United States marine corps, is in charge of a landing party from the American battleships in the harbor, which are protecting the American citizens who are concentrated in the consular compound. Messages from the consular there state the situation is well in hand.

Searching Scrutiny by the Agricultural Unit Looming

NORRIS ALREADY OPPOSES OFFER

Measure Passed Late Monday by Decisive Vote in the House

(Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, March 11—The McKenzie bill, providing for acceptance of Henry Ford's offer for Muscle Shoals was in the hands of the senate and was expected to undergo a searching scrutiny by the agricultural committee.

The measure was passed by the house yesterday by a vote of 227 to 142, after a week of stormy debate, but how soon it will be taken up by the senate committee has not been determined.

Chairman Norris already has declared opposition to the Ford offer and other members of the committee also have criticized terms of the proposed lease.

An indication of the committee's plans for consideration of the bill, however, is expected shortly. As passed by the house the measure is practically in the same form as it was reported by the military committee only a few minor amendments having been added.

All other legislative business was sidetracked during the week's debate on the offer which was made two years ago but the house today was prepared to resume its program of appropriations and other bills.

The House of Representatives at Washington Monday afternoon gave to the Tennessee Valley probably the greatest industrial impetus it has ever been the good fortune of any section of the world to receive in one single act. Its acceptance of the offer of Henry Ford to take over and operate Muscle Shoals for the benefit of all the people showed that our political parties are able to wipe out partizanship lines at times and legislate for the majority, rather than the few. It showed that the House of Representatives was determined that the agricultural interests of this nation, at least, should have a real opportunity to cheapen their cost of production. The farmers' organizations have worked tirelessly for the Ford offer and they have won a signal victory.

The hearts of the agriculturists all over the nation are lighter today for the House action, while those interests which, from time to time, have seen fit to attempt to obstruct the Ford offer will find little consolation in the decisive majority with which the House members gave voice to their determination that the man who saved Muscle Shoals from the junk heap should have a chance to work out there his dream of a new industrial empire, providing employment for more millions of wage earners; manufacturing products to enrich the commerce of America; carrying electrical energy over transmission lines to a wide territory; bringing to the farmers of Maine or Oregon the relief which before has been denied him.

The Tennessee Valley and the South is not alone in thanking the House of Representatives for its vote. In farmhouses scattered all over the land, men will read their newspaper today and, squaring their shoulders, will face the future with courage made stronger by the realization that America, with all her faults, is capable of rising to the emergency and grasping by the forelock, opportunity, when opportunity presents itself.

Situated in such close proximity to Muscle Shoals, as they are, it is but natural that the Twin Cities should feel a keener sense of gratitude to the House of Representatives than some of the communities which have not dreamed and planned and worked for such a future for the Shoals.

Through the long years of patient waiting, the Twin Cities had hoped that there would come someone with the genius, the money and the willingness to take this great potential power site on the Tennessee river and make of it a second Niagara, permitting the benefits of the wasted thousands of horsepower there to be showered on the world.

We found that man in Mr. Ford. When the automobile manufacturer and the electrical wizard, Mr. Edison, first visited Muscle Shoals, the Tennessee Valley waited with bated breath for their decision regarding the potentialities of our project. The Ford offer followed, and the Tennessee Valley was pleased that its judgment was vindicated. Muscle Shoals was saved from the junk man!

Perhaps we underestimated the obstacles which needs must be overcome for Mr. Ford's plans to be put into effect. At least the time has seemed long and the hours of waiting very wearisome. Even yet the Ford offer must run the gantlet of senatorial scrutiny, but the Tennessee Valley is very happy today, grateful for the victories already won and confident that the Ford offer, with the throttle wide open and gathering momentum as it progresses, will be able to climb any grades it may encounter.

Here in the Twin Cities, if we are to reap the entitles us to, we must have no idle dreaming of what the future may hold for us. The time for that has past. The time now is for action. Not the half-heartedly supported ineffectual efforts at community development that have characterized so many of our endeavors in the past, but a real co-operative city building movement that will bring results.

Too many of us have permitted a few faithless to carry on the work of civic organizations in days gone by. That kind of city spirit in the Twin Cities will not do in the future. If we are, as a community to continue to "let George do it," we may as well take laughing gas now and die happy.

A foot-sore trooper may be able to keep up fairly well with the column under ordinary conditions, but he soon falls out when the column takes into double time. The same is true of the Tennessee Valley. This section of the South has made steady, substantial progress for the past decade, but the band has stopped playing slow march tunes now and is jazzing "Dixie."

While helping the nation, the House of Representatives has helped us more than any other. Was there ever, in the life of any community, anywhere, a brighter opportunity than is ours now? Whatever the Senate may seem fit to do with the Ford offer, we know, every one of us, that Muscle Shoals is sure to be developed. Wilson Dam is sure to be finished. We know that the realization of our dream is near.

We hope that Mr. Ford is the one finally selected to accomplish the job, but we know that he has made it impossible to ever turn back. The nation is thoroughly convinced that the benefits of Muscle Shoals must not be thrown into the discard. They must be developed!

Do not these facts sound a clarion call to each and every one of us to buckle on our armor and assume our duties of citizenship? Our community needs us, our Chamber of Commerce needs us. Shall we give to them the willing helpfulness that they have a right to demand of us?

Every day's delay in getting our shoulder to the wheels is counting against us. The time for work is not tomorrow, but TODAY. If all of us have not signed a membership in the Chamber of Commerce, it would be a splendid way to start our civic campaign by signing. If there is an expansion of our business enterprises we have been considering, let us all see if it could not be done at once. If there is a friend who might be interested in locating here "if Ford gets the Shoals," let us write to him and see if he cannot be persuaded to come right on NOW. If there is an industry which might be interested in a southern location, let us get in touch with that industry at once and see if something couldn't be done to get it here immediately. If any of us are thinking of building a home, a business house or a factory at any time, let us ascertain if the investment couldn't be made to pay today.

Expressed in just plain English: "LET'S GO!"

The amendment of Mr. Begg went begging.

Those who hate it will not try to make paragraphs concerning the success of the Ford bid.

His home state was little more considerate of James Reed than was a certain Birmingham audience once upon a time.

Mr. Wilson was not revengeful, but it is an even bet that if he were alive today, Senator Reed's rejection in Missouri, would not worry him.

Some said Buck Oliver should not have said Sunday that all was over in the House regarding the Ford bid, but lighting the bonfires. But "Buck" was right, as usual.

There is one fact pretty well established, viz.: that Uncle Ed Almon don't need to worry about his seat in Congress, at least until some issue bigger than Muscle Shoals confronts him.

The republicans just got themselves in such bad shape they could not afford to be otherwise than generous with the big Ford offer. In other words, they saw where it would have been unwise to have acted otherwise.

If a confirmed office seeker should say he was neither "an active or receptive" candidate and "would not and could not accept" a nomination if offered him, a few—a very few—might think he

Daily Extras Are Sold in Hartselle

The extra, issued by The Daily yesterday afternoon, shortly after the house voted to accept the offer of Henry Ford for Muscle Shoals, was quickly bought by interested citizens of Albany and Decatur. The Daily also tipped anxious friends in Athens to the good news, while the first batch of papers off the press was taken to Hartselle by Herman Saffley, W. A. Sims, and Willie Silbert, three members of The Daily's mechanical staff and the "Ford extra" was sold on the streets there by 5:30 o'clock.

The Associated Press, the "old reliable" of news gathering agencies, rushed its story of Washington along to The Daily in record time, and The Daily beat all opposition in giving the news to that section of the Tennessee Valley it serves.

Why Madge's Chauffeur Stopped to Tell His Story.

I WOULD have lacked discernment indeed, if I had failed to see the panic which was shaking the driver of the car in which I was on my way to meet Alfred Durkee. That he feared pursuit was evident in the nervous watch he kept upon the traffic and his continual quick glances over his shoulder at the cars behind him. His muttered remark that he hoped the man I was to meet was already at the corner, showed his reluctance to stop his car for any appreciable length of time; and, without knowing the reason for his fear, I took prompt measures to allay it.

"I shall know in an instant if he isn't there," I said, "and in fact I don't think he possibly can have reached here yet, so why not drive around for a few minutes?"

"Good idea," he commented, biting the words short. "Which side of the street is the man?"

"South."

"Then I'll just clip over around Columbus Circle, and back-only way they'll let you turn here, then if he isn't there we'll take another run through the park."

He threaded the mazes of Columbus Circle traffic deftly, and drove slowly along the south side of Fifty-ninth street until I assured him that Alfred was nowhere to be seen. Then he swung his car into the park, and in a few minutes drew to the curb on a part of the road which was higher than the rest of the boulevard. He stopped the car, keeping the engine running, however, and swung himself to the edge of the seat so that he could keep an eye on the cars coming in either direction.

A Wave of Relief.

"Might as well stay here as keep running around in circles," he volunteered, and I guessed that the fear which was obsessing him was loosening his tongue. But I resolved to ask no questions. If I read him aright he would soon tell me the reason for his unmitigated panic.

"Suppose you think it's queer I changed cars," he began tentatively with a side glance at me.

"I suppose you had a good reason for doing so," I returned quietly.

"I'll tell the world I did," he exploded, and then as I assumed of his outburst he added quickly, "but don't get uneasy, lady. I'll get you back to Mrs. Bird's all right, even if I have to get somebody else to do it. There's nobody after you. It's me they're gunning for."

A wave of selfish relief swept over me, of which I was ashamed the next second. But I had been so sure his bizarre actions had been caused by the detective or his agents who were trailing the movements of the Harrison children, that I had been nearly panic-stricken myself. It took me several seconds to pull myself together sufficiently to make a sympathetic inquiry of the youth.

"Do you mean you're in any personal danger?" I asked.

"Depends on how good a sleuth is the bird that saw me," he returned, his eyes nervously darting back and forth on the park boulevard. "It's a guy we sent over the road once, and I had to pal around with him and get the goods on him. Of course he thought I double-crossed him, and he swore he'd do me up. I thought he was still up the river, but he's managed to get out, and is driving a taxi-phony papers, I suppose—and I lapped him just as I was turning the corner after I let you out, and he saw me."

"You were brave."

"Luckily he couldn't turn there, had to go all the way around the block, and you can bet by the time he got back to that corner I was blocks away and still going. I headed for a safe garage I knew, dumped the car and pulled this wreck out with a different overcoat and hat. I got a look at his license plate, and spilled it to my pal in the garage. He's in a position to set things going so my old friend will meet some interesting doings in a day or two, but just now that taxi had as about as wholesome for me as a poison snake on my trail would be. Of course he's lost the scent now, but I'm likely to run into him anywhere, and I'll be just as glad when we're through this stunt and headed back to the country again."

"You were brave to come back to that corner after me," I said.

"What else would I do?" he demanded, wide-eyed. "That's Mrs. Bird's job. I'd rather meet the other guy in the dark with my hands tied behind me than fall down on a job for her."

His eyes and voice were filled with a loyalty which one would never suspect from his rather unprepossessing exterior. I think he suspected both my admiration and my astonishment, for he scowled, and turning his back upon me, threw in his clutch. "Guess that guy you're going to meet ought to be on Fifty-ninth by now," he said.

FEMINISMS

CONSIDER THE FLOWERS OF THE FIELD ON MILADY'S HAT.

GERTRUDE—When I saw this hat in Paris, Beatrice, I said exactly the same thing you said—and then I bought it. The flowers are made of leather, dyed and partially gilded. I wouldn't be surprised if some clever young woman imitated it, using petals cut from old kid gloves. They say the manufacturers are going to make these hats popular, but if you make one yourself you will be just that much in advance of the fashion.

WINIFRED BLACK HEARS ABOUT Brown Dress Suits

Copyright, 1924, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

ADASHING message it is which comes out of the East and is published in all of the newspapers, a message of moment to the world in these days of artistic and lively sensations.

Man has rebelled, it is said, against the sombre black evening clothes which have so long held him down, and now a few daring ones are appearing in brown evening dress.

Brown, rich, tender, restful brown. It is but a beginning, say the authorities, and we can only guess how long it will be before the dashing beaux go back to the peach colored and blue, mauve and green of the long ago. For there is nothing new under the sun and especially in fashion. Every fashion goes back to some point in the past, men's fashions as well as women's.

A Relief from Black

Brown is the color now and we may expect to see the cautious fashion writers advising the watchful heroines of the day just what shadows will best suit the brunette, the blonde, or the neutral gentleman, and how the different colors from golden brown to the nut brown shades may best be utilized.

It will be a relief to get away from the everlasting black of dress clothes, but there is danger in freedom, let me tell you, devotees of dress in the masculine ranks. Be discreet or there will be trouble.

My friend Alice says she fears for the gentler sex when she reads of the coming glories of masculine raiment. "Girls are prone to fall in love with the black clad dancers of the evening's revels, but what will happen when Adonis is dressed in colors suitable to his style of beauty and when every partner for the dance has a toilet which demands a compliment?"

The girls will have to steel their hearts when the new revel of color gets under way.

From England comes the story of a crusade to bring to America English tea-drinking habits. It is all for the benefit of the India tea growers and the determination is to break down the alleged American coffee fetish and bring about for every day the delightful English tea table and all it means.

Coffee will hold its own here in America, we may be sure, but there is room for the delights of the English tea. In London all business and pleasure stops at four o'clock for the daily tea. At the law office, the dentist's, even, there is a pause while the tea is brought in, and at homes and in hotels, the daily tea is an event as certain as sunrise or sunset.

A Wholesome Habit

A wholesome habit it is, the stopping of work and everything else, the quiet lounging for a half hour over the tea table which can be made delightful with all sorts of cakes and dainties and the little respite is full of good effects.

We are too anxious and hurried here in America; it would be good for us to take up the English fashion of afternoon tea with its perfect ease, its friendly atmosphere and all of its abhorrence of formality.

Possibly we shall live to see our belles and beaux gathered round the afternoon tea table in radiant garbs, each rivaling the other, in browns, blues and peach color.

HOME-MAKING HELPS

Some Novel Lamp Shades for the Home.

THE fashioning of lamp shades has become a fine art. The many craftsmen who are doing novel things along this line have spurred the manufacturers to greater efforts so that there are shades of all manner of lamps in all shapes, sizes and materials to suit the pockets of all purchasers. In all the shops where materials are sold classes are taught to make fancy shades and other shades, and wire frames are to be had in almost any shape desired.

There are a few laws to be observed in shade-making. One important point is choosing a frame that fits the particular lamp. The shade should also be appropriate to the place in which it is to stand. Another law is to use materials for the shade that are harmonious with the color scheme and style of furniture of the room where the lamp is to be used. Also, there is a fine distinction made between materials for a bedroom shade and those for a living-room, dining-room or hall.

Odd little shades for lamps used in sun parlors, living-rooms and up-stairs are made of glazed chiffs in gay colorings. These shades are plaited, which makes them look almost like paper. Bases for the lamps are made of old-fashioned glass lamps, Chinese ginger jars, pottery jugs of various kinds and old pottery pickle jars in gray with the blue figures—the kind that we may remember seeing on swinging shelves in the old-fashioned cellars of our grandmothers' time.

Then come parchment shades, plain and trimmed, painted and stenciled, which are good looking, wear well, and if made at home are reasonable in price. Some are painted with a band of color at the top and bottom, edged with a gilt line. These are used in round or oblong models, or shaped like a guitar for hall use. A flat drum-shaped shade is also attractive and good for hall use, as it is effective and good for hall use, as it is electrifying of all lamps makes the closed shade possible and safe. The pills may be long enough to turn the current on and off without disturbing the shade itself. The shade takes a frame of ruffled or embroidered silk and a lace veil finished with colored silk or gold tassels requires a closed top to carry out the design.

Wooden bases are rather new for lamps and are painted to match the shades. These lamps are sometimes made of wallpaper like that used on the walls of the room or of dainty calico trimmed with antique lace motifs, which in many cases are dyed to match the coloring of the materials of which the shade is made.

Brown craft paper shades decorated in colorful polychrome fashion are popular for dining-room and library use. The bases are usually of wood, also decorated in polychrome designs. Getting away from the old round shades is rather a relief, for it gives one the pleasure of being original in her shade selections.

Glass lamps have been revived and electrified. They are quaint and pretty, especially in old-fashioned rooms. Many of us, however, are not far enough removed from the day when they had to be filled and trimmed daily to remember them pleasantly. Flower-shaped silk shades for small bedroom lamps are quaint and not hard to make. Each panel or petal is made separately, then slipped into the frame, which is of painted wood or willow.

The old-fashioned, fussy, crepe-paper shades are not made in the old style, as they were dust-catchers and not as practical as the newer straight shades made of artcraft papers. One advantage of the paper shade is that we can afford new ones frequently, especially if we have learned how to make them ourselves.

Where curtains are made for a bedroom in checked-gingham the lamp shades should be made to match. In order to make the material hold a paper or parchment foundation is used and the gingham covering is plaited with it.

YOUR HEALTH

We Only Show Ignorance If We Joke About Disease

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D.

United States Senator from New York,
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

I HAVE long observed how common it is to joke over sickness or bodily infirmity. Of course there are defects due to accidents or to congenital causes. We are not apt to speak of them. But frequently we hear it said: "I have the rheumatism so I can hardly walk. I am like a worn out old dray horse."

Another will say, "I nearly sneeze my head off every morning, I am worse than an ancient locomotive getting up steam."

Every day you hear somebody declare, "I ache all over. I have no more life than a block of wood."

All these statements are confessions of weakness which a proud man should hate to admit. How often do you hear any one brag about the number of broken window panes he has in his house? Do you hear any boasting about the broken down fences on the farm, or the weed-choked potato field?

To me ill health is not a thing to laugh over or to joke about. Just as sure as can be, the time will come when you will be ashamed to say you have a cold.

The next time you have a cold, figure out for yourself why you have it. You will find several factors.

For two or three nights you stayed out till past midnight. Because of loss of sleep you felt tired and cross. You have abused your strength, suffering indigestion because of over-eating, or taking food which always disagrees with you. Honestly, did you not show lack of character by failure to resist the temptation of a much liked dish of some sort?

Perhaps you permitted yourself to remain for hours in a poorly ventilated or smoke filled theatre or restaurant. Or the place may have been cold and draughty. You stayed all night you were chilled to the bone.

You may have suffered the tortments of worry, with its loss of appetite and loss of sleep. You have given way to the fear of disaster, lack of faith in yourself and in humanity is responsible for the lowered resistance which permitted infection.

Advice to Girls

By ANNIE LAURIE.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE: There is a certain young man whom I should like to meet. I have met his mother and been invited to his house. But every time he has been out. Will you please advise me how I can meet this young man and yet not be forward?

BROWN EYES.

BROWN EYES: Since you are friendly with the young man's mother, she will probably arrange a meeting some time soon. It is not your place to take the initiative.

Diary of a Fashion Model

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

Gaby Decides on a Figured Black and White Cotton Frock.

THERE are so many cunning frocks this season, that I should think anybody who could sew at all would soon accumulate a whole wardrobe," Pam remarked this morning.

"Yes," I agreed. "It seems to me that the new frocks are simpler and lovelier than they ever were."

"I hadn't thought much about sewing till I went with Gaby to buy some material this morning," Pam said.

She mentioned the name of a store that is noted for its beautiful wash materials. "They have Spring and Summer fabrics that would just make your mouth water," Pam declared to me.

"It's always a pleasure to go in there and walk about, even when those whose birthday it is may be certain annoyances or anxieties about papers, writing or publishing and all letters or contracts should be signed with care. In social domestic or affectional matters there is a hurry for unusual activity with more than the usual leaning toward pleasure or society, and the inclination toward lavish use of money in this direction."

Those whose birthday it is may have a year in which letters, contracts or publications cause anxiety. All writing should be signed with caution. The forecast is for much pleasure and society with the disposition to be lavish in the outlay of money for entertainment. A child born on this day may have social qualities more developed than its business tendencies and may be inclined to be extravagant unless it is carefully trained.

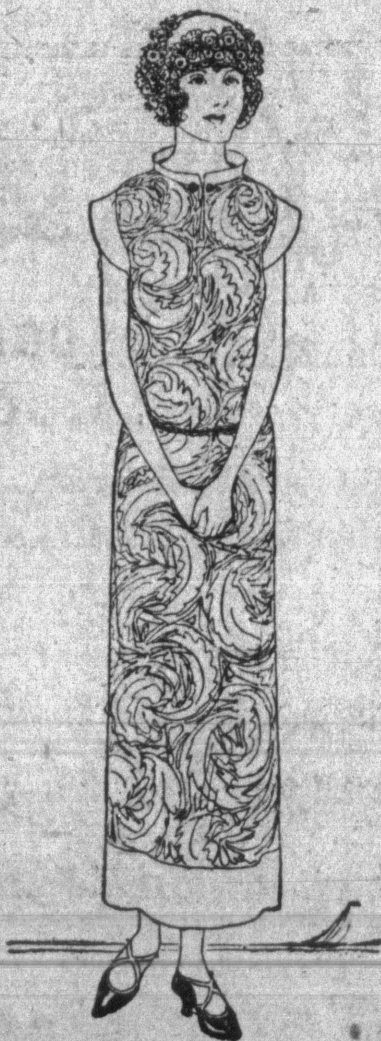

Tomorrow's HOROSCOPE

In social domestic or affectional matters there is a hurry for unusual activity with more than the usual leaning toward pleasure or society, and the inclination toward lavish use of money in this direction."

MARCH 11

On March 11, 1917, the Russian Revolution had its beginning in Petrograd. This glorious Revolution may truly be said to have revealed militant Europe to itself. The war had thrown all Russian pre-war ideas and national aspirations into a melting pot, and when the molten mass was to be poured out to cool it would form Russia's future. A government so constituted, without either collective responsibility or co-ordination, could not under the most favorable circumstances have withstood the strain of the world war. But Russia was already handicapped so, the revolution, Russia, hitherto, a byword for mansided backwardness, may in the near future take the lead, at any rate, in experimental socialism. Roy G. Hodson.

"HERRICK"

Refrigerators

Masterpiece of master builders. Air-tight and weather-proof; the most successful non-conductor of heat and cold; never sags, shrinks nor settles; neither admits nor permits animal life to exist in it; cannot decay, mildew or become affected by age.

The outside case is solid oak, the inside walls solid spruce, white enameled the "Herrick Way."

A water cooling system can be had with the Herrick which is superior by far to any system employed in any other make, no ice space being taken up, while the ice rests on the heavy coil, always furnishing a supply of ice-cold water free from slime or ammonia, or any contamination.

We will take pleasure in demonstrating this best of all Refrigerators, and in receiving your order early for the style best suited to your needs.

VOTE TODAY FOR PRESIDENT LIGHT

Despite inclement weather for the presidential presidential primary now in progress and to close late today, "business as usual" seem the right descriptive words for the activities at the several voting places throughout the cities.

The election officials were all in their places, although they receive no pay for their services this year. Although the voting appeared to be light as compared to what was expected, many ballots had been cast by 2 o'clock today.

At some of the boxes the voting was quite brisk at times.

At the court house only 45 votes had been cast at 12 o'clock; at the Decatur city hall 65 votes had been cast, while at Henry's store in West Albany 46 votes had been cast at noon. In East Albany, 32 votes. In South Albany, where the election is being held in a vacant building near Dilleyhay Brothers store, at noon a fairly large number had voted.

The ballots used carry the names of Dinmore, Musgrove and Underwood, only, and it is believed the result of the election here will be known a few minutes after the polls close.

Farm for Needy Plants Crop Soon

The Morgan County farm for the needy, kept by E. A. Harris, a few miles out of Hartselle, is being prepared for the crop season, but by help other than the inmates of the county home, it being the policy of county officials not to employ any of the people who are sent to the farm.

The county health officer, Dr. McRee, is charged with the responsibility of examining the patients at the farm and as soon as they are able to work they are released from the home. There are 22 inmates of the county home at this time.

The home enjoys an unusual distinction in that its inmates are provided with a Sunday School every Sunday as conducted by Mr. Harris and members of his family.

W. M. U. MEETING IS BROUGHT TO CLOSE

The annual district conference of the Baptist Women's Missionary Union was brought to a close here this afternoon after three well attended sessions held in the Central Baptist church with general agreement that the next annual convention of the organization shall be held in Athens, the exact date to be named later by the executive committee of the union.

The final session was devoted to routine business and to hearing addresses by Miss Blanche White, field secretary for the Southern Baptist convention, and Miss Hannah Reynolds, of Montgomery.

Mrs. A. T. Hanson presided at the final session and also at the Tuesday morning session, when the bulk of the business of the district union was conducted, and when a stirring address on missions was delivered by Mrs. W. W. Adams, of North China, who is in this country for a few months.

The opening session, held Monday night, was largely attended considering the inclement weather. Miss Bettie Burlson presided at that session and had charge of an attractive program, as executed by the younger members of the Central Baptist church. Addresses were delivered by Mrs. Adams and a number of other prominent Baptist women at that session.

Central Methodist Will Have Revival

Beginning April 6 and continuing until April 20, Easter Sunday, the Central Methodist church will conduct a revival meeting, to be led by its pastor, Dr. James D. Hunter.

Dr. Hunter said that in a short time he hoped to announce the engagement of a talented singer, who has been in evangelistic work for some years. Dr. Hunter expects to do most of the preaching during the revival meeting.

The matter of conducting the revival was discussed by the official members of the congregation and then submitted to the congregation, both the officials and the members of the congregation approving the pre-Easter revival meeting.

Seek Directory of Wholesalers

The chamber of commerce is calling out to all merchants in its directory a letter, asking the merchant to list with the chamber of commerce the names of whole sale they buy goods. It was stated that this is very necessary for the success of the membership drive that is to come in the near future.

It was pointed out that it does not matter where the wholesale people are, their names and addresses are wanted by the chamber.

"As this is a very important matter," it was said, "it is hoped that every merchant will send in his list even if he does not get a request for same that he will not delay."

Important to All Women Readers of This Paper

Thousands upon thousands of women have kidney or bladder trouble and never suspect it.

Women's complaints often prove to be nothing else but kidney trouble, or the result of kidney or bladder disease.

If the kidneys are not in a healthy condition, they may cause the other organs to become diseased.

You may suffer pain in the back, headache and loss of ambition.

Poor health makes you nervous, irritable and may be despondent; it makes any one so.

But hundreds of women claim that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, by restoring health to the kidneys, proved to be just the remedy needed to overcome such conditions.

Many send for sample bottle to see what Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder medicine will do for them. By enclosing ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., you may receive sample size bottle by Parcel Post. You can purchase medium and large size bottles at all drug stores.—Adv.

Delicious, Flaky PIE CRUSTS

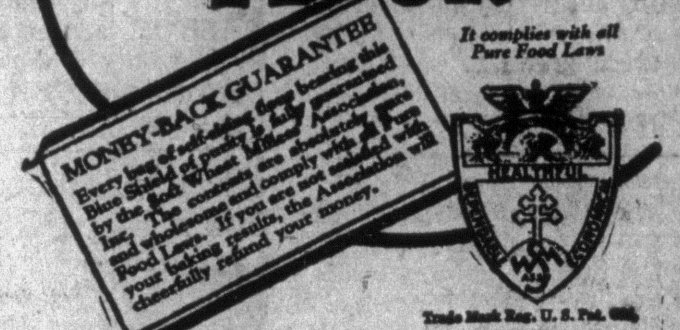

BAKE your favorite pie from a crust made of self-rising flour. The wholesome, flaky texture will reveal to you a new delight in pie making. Many excellent cooks find self-rising flour without equal for all kinds of delicious pastries.

Mrs. G——, who has been a self-rising flour enthusiast for 21 years writes: "I like self-rising flour for pie crust because it makes a crust so light that anyone loves it. . . . I also make a great many tarts. Self-rising flour is especially fine for short-cakes. I make them of every kind of fruit, both fresh and canned, as well as with creamed chicken, fish or oysters."

Self-Rising flour comes with just the right amount of pure phosphate baking powder already mixed in to give perfect baking results. Nowhere can you buy a more healthful food—nowhere can you obtain more value for your money than in good self-rising flour.

FOLLOW THESE FIVE RULES For Making Perfect Biscuits with Self-Rising Flour. (1) See that your oven is hot; (2) Always use sweet milk or cold water; (3) Never add baking powder, soda or salt; (4) Use good shortening—lard, vegetable fat or butter; (5) Make soft dough—bake quickly.
